Therese Ambrosi Smith

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.

I can't imagine what I would have studied if I hadn't been there. Because I've always been there, the national anthems of the world—every anthem I've heard for them, my whole life—and I always remember them. They're a part of my life. We sang them at school, we sang them at home, and we sang them at every public event. I've always sung them, and I always will. I've always sung them, and I always will.